At present, the ASI has declared 3656 monuments to be of national importance in the country. The major activities of the ASI are maintenance, conservation and preservation of centrally protected monuments/sites and remains. It conducts archeological exploration and excavation regularly. It also keeps developing epigraphical research, setting up and reorganization of site museums and training in archaeology.

The Directorate of Archeological Survey of India at Delhi is entrusted with the responsibility of implementing the annual programmes in the above fields, and is provided with a moderate staff component comprising of archaeologists, conservation engineering, horticulturists, scientists, publications ministerial staff and large force of monument attendants.

CONSERVATION OF ANCIENT MONUMENTS AND ORIGINAL WORKS

The Archaeological Survey of India has 24 Circles and three Mini-Circles at present, whose jurisdictions are by and large co-terminus with the States.

Under the Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Sites and Remains Act of 1958, the ASI has declared three thousand six hundred and fifty six monuments to be of national importance in the country. Out of these 17 were taken up for protection in 2004.

With the commencement of the 10th Plan period, perspective plans have been prepared by all the 24 Circles, Science and Horticulture Branch of the Archaeological Survey of India covering over 500 monuments. These plans envisage an integrated approach covering conservation, landscape development and scientific cleaning and preservation of the monuments.

The conservation problems of the monuments under the protection of ASI are enormous and multifarious. The execution of conservation works needs an excellent expertise and timely funding.

All appurtenant lands adjoining the protected monuments, which also a part of the protected area, are being surveyed and fenced to develop as greens.

Linkages are being developed between the Department of Culture and the Department of Tourism in order to ensure that growth in a particular cluster of monuments is integrated.

Greater thrust is being given to collaborations with the Corporate Sector such as the Taj Group of Hotels World Monuments Fund etc. for formulation of Master Plans and for implementation of integrated development of some important monuments.

Emphasis is given for the development of cultural and eco-tourism integrating with the monuments. For this purpose cultural hubs encompassing facilities for tourists such as interpretation centers, public conveniences and modern ticket counters would be created keeping the prominent monuments as a focal developmental point and incorporating all minor monuments and sites in the near vicinity. Certain cultural hubs thus identified are:

- Mahabalipuram
- Ajanta & Ellora
- Hampi
- Kurukshetra
- Chittorgarh
- Kumbhalgarh
- Sibsagar monuments and
- Fatehpur Sikri.

ASI has taken up a five years project of comprehensive conservation and environmental development of certain monuments such as Ajanta, Ellora, Pitalkhora and Aurangabad Caves, Bibi-ka-Maqbara, Daulatabad Fort under Ajanta Ellora Conservatin and Tourism Project – Phase-II with loan from Japan Bank of International Cooperation (JBIC), Japan.

The ASI is bringing more monuments under central protection and also raising the number of monuments for ticketing purpose.

The Project of Conservation of Ta Prohm Temple Complex in Cambodia was started in 2003-04 under ITEC Programme of MEA. It is a ten years project and during the first year, ASI has conducted scientific studies and investigations with the help of IIT Madras, Chennai and Water and Power Consultancy Services, Delhi. ASI has also conducted Ta Prohm Symposium on 5th February 2004. A report on Scientific Studies and Investigations was submitted to UNESCO in the International Coordination Committee (ICC) Meeting held on February 9 and 10, 2004. Documentation of the temple complex is also attended. For the Second working team of six months commencing from December 2004, we propose to take up those portion where there is minimum intervention of trees. Therefore, dismantling and reconstruction of eastern corridors of the third enclosure are proposed to be taken up this year.

Recently, the Government has launched National Mission for Monuments and Antiquities with the objective to create a national register both for Monuments and Antiquities, besides creating general awareness and sensitizing the masses concerning the benefits of preserving the historical and cultural aspects of built heritage and sites and checking the illicit trafficking of antiquities.

6. NATIONAL COUNCIL OF SCIENCE MUSEUMS (NCSM), KOLKATA

The National Council of Science Museums (NCSM), under the Ministry of Culture, Govt. of India, is primarily engaged in popularizing Science and Technology amongst students in particular and the masses in general through a wide range of exhibits and activities including interactive programmes such as Science Demonstration Lectures, Astronomy related programs, Taramandal Show, Science Quiz, Popular Lecture, Science film Show, etc. The Council provides catalytic support to the hitherto unrepresented states for setting up science centres and initiate science popularization activities. This is the largest network of 26 science centers under a single administrative control. About six million people visit the centers of NCSM every year. The widespread activity of NCSM has earned attention and recognition from all parts of the world. NCSM, in some cases, has become a role model for science centers in many developing countries.

One of the most important objectives of NCSM is to reach the rural population in remote villages. This is done through Mobile Science Exhibition (MSE) programs in which specially designed Museobuses with thematic exhibitions on locally relevant scientific topics are taken to the rural populace. Improvement in the designs of the Museobuses and the exhibits are now being worked out so that they can have better maneuverability in hilly areas and underdeveloped roads. V-SAT connectivity for extended scope of the programme is also being planned.

The enormous growth in the network of science centres in India generated huge demand for a sophisticated in house exhibit development and training base. The Central Research and Training Laboratory (CRTL), Kolkata gets support from a Research Advisory Board (RAB) consisting of eminent scientists derived from scientific R&D organizations for R&D activities related to new exhibit fabrication, display techniques, science communication activities including digital and multimedia programs. NCSM has on its credit innovative exhibits and activities, a host of novel hardware and software programs. The copyright registration of five items has been obtained in the name of the National Council of Science Museums under the provisions of the Copyright Act. More copyrights are awaited.

National Council of Science Museums created another landmark by launching 'MS Course in Science Communication' on 23rd July 2005 at NCSM. The course is first in this part of the world and a rare addition in the field of education. The course is being conducted in collaboration with BITS, Pilani, a University of international repute and with faculty support from Smithsonian Institution, Washington, DC.

To commemorate the event of the 'World Year of Physics-2005', NCSM designed and developed a traveling Exhibition entitled 'A Century of Physics' with rich information, rare photographs & documents, informative panels, interactive exhibits, audiovisuals etc. As a part of this event an International Workshop on 'Demonstration in Physics', was organized by NCSM where a live interactive workshop with Denver Museum, USA through video conferencing system was done. This is the first time that two remote science centres were connected by this technique.

6. NATIONAL MISSION FOR MANUSCRIPTS

The National Mission for Manuscripts was launched in February, 2003. This Mission aims at cataloguing, conserving and collecting the invaluable manuscripts from all over the country. The Mission has already established a network of 51 Manuscripts Resource Centre and 29 Manuscripts Conservation Centres at different States. As a National effort in the form of a Mission for Manuscripts as a logical, radical and urgent response to a very contemporary challenge- of reclaiming the inheritance contained in manuscripts, often in a poor state of preservation. The Mission is strictly time-bound with five years as its time lone to achieve these challenging targets.

In the transition from the second to the third year, the activities of the Mission have expanded manifold. Apart from the Manuscripts Resource Centre and Manuscripts Conservation Centres, the Mission has added to its network a new group of institutions with large manuscripts holdings. These institutions, designated as Manuscripts Partner Centre, have affiliated with the Mission for the documentation of their own collection. As a follow-up of the National Survey, started as a pilot programme last year, Post Survey programmes have been introduced this year to harvest all the data on manuscripts located in the three States of Orissa, Bihar and Uttar Pradesh. The National Survey of Manuscripts has covered extensive ground this year by spreading to the regions of north-east, south and west, involving about eight thousand people, perhaps one of the most extensive programmes of its kind in India in the area of cultural mapping. All these efforts have strengthened the National Electronic Database of Manuscripts, which now contains information on more than one million manuscripts making it one of the largest databases of its kind.

The Manuscripts Conservation programmes have gathered momentum, with more institutions joining hands with the Mission and more people being trained in preventive and curative conservation to address the vast challenge of conservation in India. Apart from expanding the network of Manuscripts Conservation Centres, National Mission has sought to provide assistance to institutions with large holding of manuscripts by designating them as Manuscript Conservation Partner Centres and focusing on storage re-organization and preventive conservation in a scientific manner. As part of a long term strategy, the Mission is trying to develop basic infrastructure for the conservation of manuscripts by establishing priority areas such as research, material testing facilities, training and setting up of centres of excellence in manuscript conservation.

The Pilot Project on Digitization that was launched last year is coming to a close, and we are ready to continue digitization on a broader scale, by documenting the most important manuscripts in the country. Among the other new programmes launched last year are advanced-level Manuscriptology courses, a series of lectures conducted across the country, seminars, a bi-monthly publication titled Kriti Rakshana, publication initiatives and specific activities targeting the younger generation. The Mission is also in the process of publishing a series of critical edition of as yet unpublished texts.

H. PROMOTION AND DISSEMINATION OF CULTURE

1. CENTRE FOR CULTURAL RESOURCES AND TRAINING

The Centre for Cultural Resources and Training is implementing two schemes:

1. Propagation of Culture among school students
2. Cultural Talent Search Scholarship Scheme (CTSS)

The broad objective of the scheme on Propagation of Culture among school students has been to revitalize the education system by creating an understanding and awareness among students about the plurality of the regional cultures of India and integrating this knowledge with education. Under this scheme, CCRT conducts a variety of training programmes for in-service teachers and teacher educators drawn from all parts of the country. The training provides an understanding and appreciation of the philosophy, aesthetics and beauty inherent in Indian art and culture and focuses on formulating methodologies for incorporating a cultural component in curriculum teaching. An important component of training is to create awareness amongst students and teachers of their role in solving environmental pollution problems and conservation and preservation of the natural and cultural heritage. Under this scheme, the CCRT also organises various educational activities for school students and children belonging to governmental and non-governmental organisations under its Community and Extension Feedback Programme, which includes, Educational tours to Monuments, Museums, Art Galleries, Craft Centres, Zoological Parks, Nature Gardens, Camps on Conservation of the Natural and Cultural Heritage, Camps on Learning Crafts using low cost locally available resources; Lectures and demonstrations by artists and craft persons in schools, Slide-lectures supplementing class-room teaching. Workshops for children of resettlement and basti colonies and for physically challenged students are also organized.

The CCRT has been implementing the Cultural Talent Search Scholarship Scheme since 1982. The Scheme aims at providing facilities to study the performing and other arts to outstanding young children in the age group of 10-14 years. Students studying either in recognised schools or belonging to families practicing traditional, performing and other arts are chosen for the award of scholarships in various artistic fields. Special emphasis is laid on rare art forms. The scholarships continue till the age of 20 years or the first year of a University degree. About 300 scholarships are offered every year.

L. INDIRA GANDHI NATIONAL CENTRE FOR THE ARTS

Indira Gandhi National Centre for the Arts (IGNCA) is a premier national institution engaged in the pursuit of knowledge on arts and culture and in the exploration of relationships of arts and culture with various disciplines of learning and diverse aspects of life. Established in 1987 as an autonomous institution under the Ministry of Culture, the IGNCA was envisioned as a centre for research, academic pursuit and dissemination in the field of the arts. It has multifarious activities such as research, publication, training, documentation, dissemination and networking and is poised to grow into a large repository of information pertaining to the arts in India. 'The Arts' encompass a wide range of subjects – from archaeology to dance and anthropology to the photographic art, enveloping them in a complementary and non-demarcated vision. The IGNCA seeks to place the arts within the natural and human environment by providing a forum for creative and critical dialogue between the diverse arts, between the arts and sciences, between the arts and the traditional and current knowledge systems. The IGNCA promotes interaction and understanding between diverse communities, regions, social strata, and between India and other parts of the world. In its functioning, the IGNCA has met its mandate and continues to work in this direction.

IGNCA has been designated as a nodal agency for setting up a National Data Bank on Arts, Humanities and Cultural Heritage. It has an outstanding reference library, documented material including audio/video material, manuscripts, slides, photographs and artifacts. A major initiative is a Cultural Informatics Lab (CIL), which employs an integrated methodology to develop applications to access diverse media on all fields relating to arts through multi-media and digital technology. Broadly, the major activities of CIL can be classified under three categories of digitization, web-enabled digital library and CDROM/DVDROM project. The fundamental approach of the Centre in all its work is both multi-disciplinary and interdisciplinary. Its focus is arts of India, both classical and folk and it has expanded its horizons to other civilizations and cultures.

For facilitation for specific programmes, IGNCA's institutional structure is a complex combination of five functional divisions. These are Kalanidhi, Kalakosa, Janapada Sampada, Kaladarsana and Sutradhara.

The above apart, as a nodal agency, IGNCA houses National Mission for Manuscript, as an unit of Ministry of Culture, for preservation of the storehouse of knowledge in the form of manuscripts.

During the current year 2005-06, the Centre was engaged in a number of activities, relating to research, publication, documentation, digitization, microfilming, training, exhibitions etc.

In addition, the IGNCA was also associated and engaged in Collaborative Programmes organized by certain International Agencies such as Embassy of Poland, Embassy of China, and Italian Cultural Centre.

The IGNCA has established in 2001 a Southern Regional Centre (SRC) at Bangalore. This Centre was aimed at intensifying the studies on the Southern Region's Art and Cultural heritage. The SRC has launched a long term project 'Documentation of vanishing folk tradition.' Under this, the Centre hosted a programme of folk artists Saakamma and Honamaiah during October, 2005. The SRC
